

ORANGE PRESERVES

Spring 2025

REFLECTIONS

By Rob Boice | President, OTPA

FOR 39 YEARS the Old Towne Preservation Association has fought to preserve, protect and enhance historic Old Towne Orange.

Our first effort was to lobby the city to transform the Old Towne Design Guidelines into The Old Towne Design Standards. Today, those Standards run alongside those of the Secretary of the Interior Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties.

In 1997, the OTPA Board approved the herculean task of placing Old Towne on the National Register. We submitted a more than 400-page application, and Old Towne Orange was soon awarded National Register status, making it the largest National Historic Register District in California. Those are only two of the most important contributions that OTPA has made in preserving our city's historic resources.

In late 2024, OTPA helped create a coalition agreement with the Orange Legacy Alliance (OLA), a new preservation organization dedicated to "fostering awareness and appreciation of our community's historic and cultural resources."

Old Towne Preservation Association HOW IT ALL BEGAN...

Here's the story of how a bunch of "street fighters" decided to save Old Towne, the charming and unique neighborhood we call home.

By Dale Rahn, OTPA founder and first president

If we don't do it, nobody else will.

Those were challenging words to me in January of 1985. Neighbors living next to Chapman University, then Chapman College, posed that statement when I met with them about organizing the community to protect their neighborhood, in particular one historic house slated for demolition in order to make room for the new library.

We, the neighbors, met at Watson's Drug Store and decided to organize.

Golly, has it really been that long ago? Almost 39 years ago I started something that captured my passion and awakened my mind! I was 34 years old; I was in the final throes of finishing my graduate degree in Landscape Architecture, I had two baby daughters and was deep in refurbishing our home on the 300 Block of North Harwood.

I was enflamed with "visions" of what Old Towne could be. The existing City government was void of any real vision, I think they wanted something, but they were mired in old ways of thinking. Thankfully, Old Orange was beginning to be "found" by then "Yuppies" like me! I found them, or they found me, none-the-less, we gathered like-minded, passionate, hardworking, self-sacrificing people to organize our little community. We haggled over a name, we wanted something catchy, finding nothing acceptable, we settled on Old Towne Preservation Association.

We were not experts in preservation, we were not purists either, we simply wanted Old Towne residential areas to continue as family neighborhoods, we wanted the Plaza core to be dynamic, interactive, vital again. We looked at it as a whole; entwined, residences, commercial and governmental, like any small town. I walk through Old Towne with my now grown children and their spouses, and my grandchildren, I see and experience "we did it!". We changed it all, residences, the commercial areas and even the government for the better!

Last October, the Orange City Council unanimously voted to enter into a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with OTPA and OLA. The objective of the MOU is to provide the City Council with a report on research and a direction forward on three critical issues affecting preservation work in our city.

- 1 Produce a Historic and Cultural Resources Preservation Ordinance
 - 2 Better define the oversight of the Design Review Committee
 - 3 Provide recommendations to improve the Mills Act Program.
- We expect to present this report in Spring 2025.

This effort is among the most important work that OTPA has embarked on in our 39-year history. Addressing these three issues will secure the preservation of our considerable collection of historic resources for years to come.

OTPA PRESIDENT ROB BOICE speaks at the City's 2nd Annual Economic Development Forum. The Forum explored ways to improve the City's vibrant business community, particularly in Old Towne where preservation has been instrumental in creating an environment which attracts visitors for dining, shopping and exploring.

OTPA's BOARD OF DIRECTORS meets monthly at the Orange Public Library and gathers annually in January for a half-day Planning Retreat to map out the year's preservation projects, schedule and budget. Want to get involved? Let us know what committee you'd like to serve on at otpa.org.

OTPA ASSIGNED AN INTERN FOR THE OFFICE OF THE MAYOR, funded by its Anne Siebert Scholarships, to work on preservation projects. Pictured below is intern Lucas McDonald working with History Center director Aida Cuevas to digitize information on Old Towne's historic homes into the Center's permanent records, providing a valuable resource for Old Towne residents and researchers.

Q: What's going on with the Royer Mansion at 307 E. Chapman Ave. across from City Hall?

A: The City is looking to lease or sell the historic Royer Mansion to an investor who can renovate the property for use as either a boutique hotel or high-end restaurant. The City has a few interested parties with experience in doing quality projects in Old Towne, and proposals may be before City Council soon. It was built in 1900 and once was the home of Orange Mayor Dr. Daniel Franklin.
